20a. How does the Committee accomplish its purpose?

Consistent with Congress' expressed desire that federal agencies work together to coordinate their juvenile justice and delinquency prevention efforts, the Coordinating Council on Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (Council), established by Section 206 of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974, as amended, promotes and encourages federal interagency cooperation on issues pertaining to juvenile justice, delinquency prevention and control, and missing and exploited children. Please visit the Coordinating Council website at: <http://www.JuvenileCouncil.gov>.

20b. How does the Committee balance its membership?

The Council's membership is set by Congress and is comprised of nine federal agency members ( a 1992 Amendment to the Juvenile Justice Delinquency Prevention Act specified that the Federal agency membership be comprised of nine ex officio members and any other agencies designated by the President) and ten practitioner member positions. Practitioner members represent a broad cross-section of professionals directly involved with juveniles and the juvenile justice system. Appointments included three Presidential selections, three by the Speaker of the House, three by the Majority leader of the Senate. The Tribal Law and Order Act added a 10th practitioner member position that is yet to be filled by the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs. Appointed members hold terms for one, two or three years and each appointing authority may fill vacancies arising during terms. Currently there are nine practitioners: five judges, a foundation executive, a business owner, a writer-advocate, and a treatment services agency executive.

20c. How frequent and relevant are the Committee Meetings?

The full Council typically meets quarterly. Council meetings address federal coordination relating to cutting edge issues in juvenile justice, such as the education and at-risk youth, tribal youth and juvenile justice, juvenile reentry and transition to adulthood, and racial and ethnic disparities in juvenile justice, foster care and related sectors.

20d. Why can't the advice or information this committee provides be obtained elsewhere?

The Council provides a critical forum for Executive Branch agency leadership to jointly review matters of policy, practice and program that directly impact the viability of juvenile justice and prevention of delinquency and to determine how best to coordinate and leverage federal resources directed at prevention and crime control. Practitioner members help to ensure that deliberations of the Council reflect and meet the needs and concerns of state and local jurisdictions.
